Re: Documentation of Phone Conversation, M/039/002, Redmond Clay & Salt Company, Inc., Sevier County, Utah

On January 8, 1990, Milo Bosshardt telephoned me in response to his receipt of our December 19, 1989 letter. The letter requested that the operator contact us by January 10th to arrange a meeting to discuss permitting requirements for the company's unpermitted clay and salt mining operations.

Mr. Bosshardt indicated that he would come to Salt Lake to meet with us, but would like to have one of his other family members involved in the permitting discussions. That individual has recently had surgery in Salt Lake and will need to come back for a doctor's checkup within the month. Mr. Bosshardt indicated he would like to coordinate our meeting in conjunction with one of these visits.

I indicated that this would be acceptable, but to give us at least one weeks notice so we could arrange our schedules accordingly. He agreed to advise us of the same.

If we have not received any followup notification from the operator by February 26th, then we will need to contact the company again and arrange a definitive date for a meeting.
